According to Taoism, the equilibrium of the universe is maintained by the interplay of the Two Great Powers - Yin and Yang - which together contain all the alternating forms of the creative force in the cosmos. Yin is female, dark and negative; yang is male, light and positive, and all phenomena can be classified in these terms. Taoism sees yin and yang as aspects of the One Whole, existing not in antagonism to each other, but in an effective and creative relationship. This series of essays examines the concept of yin and yang in depth, not only in relation to Taoist philosophy and culture, but also as an aspect of other major religions - including Buddhism, Judaism and Christianity.
